The German bark Rebecca reports left Newcastle, N.S.W., on 23rd March; on April 12th, sighted the Island of Sikiana (Stewart's Island,) when about 7 miles off canoes came off with natives and Europeans, 4 in number; they stated that they had been shipwrecked on the island in the schooner Designee, of Sydney, on the 25th of January; they were anxious to leave the Island, and the captain offered to take them to Hongkong, of which they availed themselves. The four men he took on board are Mr. Ehenezer Keats, late chief-officer of the Defiance, Mr. P. Thorp, supercargo, Thomas Cockburn and Frederick Blacklook (seamen.) The captain was informed by Mr. Keats that the Captain William Bedell, with two seamen and a native of Sandwich Island, had left the Island three days previous to the Rebecca's arrival, in a boat, to try to reach the Sandwich THE undersigned having been appointed Island for assistance. They all appeared to be suffering from the effects of the climate, and pared to accept risks against Fire, subject to a stated they had for some time been living on bonus of 20 per cent. native food, and were in a most destitute condition. The bark Rebecca left the Island as soon as the captain got the men on board, leaving one behind, who preferred staying on the Island; from thence had a continuation of light winds and calms throughout the whole passage till the last two days, when got S.W. monsoon to

It is everywhere a matter of difficulty driven in shore. Got out boat and endeavoured them, when he pushed her out of the house, to administer relief in such a way that it will afford assistance to the unfortunate, without 1.45 a.m. of the 24th, she struck on the reef, the habit of trying to cheat him, alleging be encouraging the idle and worthless. But if and immediately both topmasts went over the has got more clothes than she herself places this were a reason for giving up all attempts at forming relief associations, the result numbers to the wreck, and assisted all they Defendant was discharged, and complainant would be that they would be formed nowhere Hongkong, on account of the smallness of the place, this particular difficulty will pro minute status of the smallness of the smallness of the place, this particular difficulty will pro minute status of the smallness of the of the small sma -the place, this particular difficulty will probably be more easily overcome than anywhere else. One very simple way of meeting exhausted, and the hurricane season being over, previous up on a summons from the first defendit would be to obtain, if possible, the cooperation of one or two gentlemen, who would be likely to know very well any men who were not fit subjects for relief. Mr Dovolas, the Superintendent of the Gaol would no doubt be able to give valuable assistance in this direction, and could easily be · referred to from time to time as necessary. Another objection that is at times made against carrying out a schepte for relieving such relief—that any who are industrious, sion, and our health failing us, we all, with the fendants abused them on the road, and followand intend to help themselves, can find the exception of one man, gladly availed ourselves ing them to the washerman's shop. They then means of doing so. This may appear to be of Captain Bundguarrd's kind offer. The De- went into the shop to take ten, when the dethe fact, to those whose attention has not Henderson & Co. of Sydney, and is fully insured her, and said she must be a sweetheart of the been specially drawn to the subject, but we in that city. can assure those who think in this way, that there is the best authority for stating feel towards them, for their hospitality and shup, give the same evidence, and said she also that at times cases of very great hardship unremitting attention to our wants, whilst was called a sweetheart of the washerman's. arise, and it is most frequently among the men who are really desirous of honestly the shewn them by ships calling at the Island, working, that misfortune presses most severely. The useless idler does not long hesitate " to thrust himself forward as an object of pity, enlisting peoples' sympathies and obtaining their aid. But deserving men who are in trouble shrink from soliciting private charity until they have exhausted every means in their power to help themselves, and pass through the severest straits in this attempt. The police reports are sufficient to show that this is often the case. One instance alone, which will probably be within the recollection of most of our readers, well 'illustrates the nature of the relief required. A respectable ship's carpenter left Yokohama for this port in the hope of obtaining employment. None offering at the time, his small store of money was soon exhausted. He happened to stumble across a friend, to ception given us by you on board your vessel, whom he had lent a sum of money before leaving Yokohama, and he urged him Island, and also for the continued hospitality to pay some of it to prevent his going to gaol. The small amount he thus obtained did not, however, last him long, and to gool ment to that profession you are so eminently he ultimately went, feeling the disgrace most acutely. There is, in fact, scarcely any place in the world where it is more difficult for a man who happens to be in a destitute condition to right himself. In most other places

a man can find at least manual employment

"THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY" | such as will enable him to tide over an unlucky interval, and keep him until he is able to find suitable employment; but here, there is so little demand for manual work from foreigners, that this natural means of righting. been many other instances similar to the one gaol simply on account of their being in a destitute condition, and it is against this that a refuge, such as is suggested, should afford a protection. If nothing else could be done, there might at least be a department in connection with the gaol itself, to which men could be sent and cared for until some of their being cent to gaol as offenders; but it may be hoped that something better could be done, if a little carnestness were thrown into the work.

The performance of "Caste" last night at the City Hall was a thorough success throughout, and does very great credit to the powers of the Troupe, It is in fact difficult to make selections, where all did so well. OVER WEIGHT BALANCES. The masters of Nos. 20, 22, 24, Salt-fish lans, and 93, Praya West, were summoned for having over weight balances.

Mr. Wotton, of Messra. Caldwell and Brereton, appeared for the first three defendants. Inspector Livingstone, sworn, stated he visited the fish lans at West Point, and found all the balances correct except the balances of deemployment could be found for them, instead | fendants. The balance of No. 20 he found to be six tacks over weight in 50 catties, on a three pienl balance; No. 22 he found to be five tacle over weight in 50 ontties; No. 24 he found to be the same as No. 22 in two and a half picul balance. He believed they used these balances

Elle, more than half a pint. The woman contended the other to that of the British parque Albion's that because she chose to be liberal and give Isle. have her measures reduced to the proper size. However, he would hear what the defendants had to say for themselves. Mr. Wotton asked witness whether the defendants had not said anything to him about their society compelling them to have their balances to be in that state, and whether they had not made a report to the Colonial Secretary

Witness said nothing was said to bim about society rules, nor was it his duty to have anything, to do with society rules; his duty was to adjust by Government weights, which he had done; and finding the defendants' balances to be not in accordance with them, he seized them, and it was then they made the report to the government-not till then.

First three defendants said it was a rule amongst them to have their balances in that way. It was understood between the customers and the Society to whom they were brokers and managers that balances to weigh wet salt fish should be so, and balances to weigh dry ealt fish should be correct, as when they weighed salt fish when wet, it lost in the water running out, so that if they did not allow in the balances they would be short in each ploul.

Mr. May told first three defendants the law. was the only standard they were to go by; if they went by society laws they would be breaking the English law. It was a lame excuse for them to say they had their scales adjusted to allow of weighing salt fish when wet, if they wanted to be honest it was an easy matter for them to have their balance correct, and then say to their customers, "Now here the fish i wet here is ten catty or so to make up for the water they would lose," instead of the stupid way they allege they have in vogue, of keeping incorrect balances to suit oustomers. He would remand the case till Saturday, and give them an opportunity to rectify their balances. The case for the first three defendants was then remanded till Saturday. Complainant further stated that he examined the balances at No. 93, Praya West, a chandler's shop; his measures and balances were all correctwith the exception of one, which he produced, it being one tael deficient in a catty, or six per Defendant said he knew that the balance was incorrect, it had been out of use and placed hat the back part of the shop, but a new shop coolie took it by mistake. Defendant was fined in the sum of $5, in default five days' imprisonment, the balances to be confiscated.

The Earl of Limerick, who regretted that the Senior Grand Prior of Ireland was not present, briefly responded. He remarked that he had striven to the utmost of his ability to On New York:promote this upion of the two orders, and he warmly congratulated the company that the ON BOMBAY,-Bank, 3 days' eight 233 union had at last been accomplished Deputy Grand Master R. W. Shekleton also acknowledged the compliment, and the proceedings then terminated, the speechmaking part of the ceremony having occupied only about a quarter of an hour.

His Royal Highness, on retiring from the room, was again loudly cheered.

HEALTH OF THE NAVY. The Statistical Abstract of the Health of the Navy shows that in the year ending the 30th of June, 1872, the total force was 46,695, and the number of cases of disease and injury entered on the sick list 55,095, which is in the ratio of 1,179.8 per 1,000; the number of persons invalided from the service affout was 1,489, or 31.8 per 1,000; and the number of deaths 410, or 85 per 1,000. All these ratios are con-The ratio of cases entered on the sick list was 1,670.5 per 1,000 on the East Indies station: 1.6213 on the Coast of Africa and Cape of Good Hope; 1,5414 on the Mediterranean; 1,532.4 Pacific, 1,502-2 Australia, 1,502-0 China. 1,405.0 North America and West Indies; 1,1983 South-east Coast of America; 9271 Home station. The highest sick-rate was on the East Indies station, and was attributable to the baneful effects of service in the Persian Gulf, in the Guif of Oman, and in Mozembique Channel; febrile diseases caused the most numerous entries on the sick-list, and cases of isolation were frequent. The heat in the Persian Gulf, is described as intense; the range of the thermometer from 88 to 108 degs., and even higher, very inadequately indicated the amount of sensible heat experienced, for occasionally, both during night and day, guets of scorching wind prevailed for hours, drying up all moisture as by the blast of a furnance and rendering all metal and glass work so hot that they became intolerable to the touch, The majority of the febrile cases, however, were ephemeral and very amenable to treatment. The sick-rate on the West Coast of Africa and Cape of Good Hope stations was one of the lowest on record. On the China station, also, the squadron was very healthy. As heretofore, that portion of it which was employed on the southern division of the station, in the East Indian Archipelago, euffered more than the vessels stationed in Japan and in the north of Ohina; malarial fevers, diarrhosa, and boils and abscesses were the most prevalent affections. A good deal of febrile disease was contracted by the crews of ships under repair in the dry dock at Aberdeen. Hongkong. An increase in the sick-rate on the Mediterranean station is mainly attributed to one vessel, the crew of which had been much reduced in physical strength by service on the North America and West Indies station, where they were visited by a severe epidemic of chong to travelling trader. yellow fever. Some crews also suffered from malarious fevers contracted at Galatz in the Danube, from malaria at Brindisi, and from being moored at Malta close to a spot at which a quantity of offensive liquid was being dis--charged to empty a coffer-dam. The report shows that there was considerable loss of health from disease occasioned by immorality at stations where no measures are taken to check the spread of contagious disease. In observing the ratios of cases entered on the sick-list it will be found that the ironclads compare most favourably with any other class of sea-going vessel employed in the duties of a man-of-war. ironolad ships: 1.6273 third-rate: 1.2251 fourth-rute: 1,4597 fifth-rate: 1,4780 sixth- at moderate rates, rate; 1,629.8 sloops; 1,724.1 gon vessels; 1,858.4 Apply to gunboats. IMPERIAL QUARTO. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

ANGLO-CRINESE DICTIONARY, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. LIOR comprehensiveness and practical service

this Work stands unrivalled. All toe new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the num ous obin science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Ponti prenunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to | M sonssigns informe Messieure les Unp make the Chinese and English type correspond La taines de navires de Commerce Français 1, Alexandra Terrace, in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast qu'il leur est strictement interdit d'embarques previously attained, and dispensing with those Houses autres quo colles affichees à la Chancel vast margine and vacant spaces which have beretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Children' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person, who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. parties resident in England and interested in It comprises unwards of two thousand large quarte pages.

CLUB CONVERSATION The following is a simple and easily understood specimen of a club conversation :-First Speaker-" Are you going to Aldershott to-morrow?" Second Speaker-"No." for the third time. Second Speaker-"Waiter, bring me gin and seltzer." This one might call the unit of a club conversation, upon which more elaborate remark may be superadded at will, or it may be considered that ultimate atom of dialogue which does not admit of further divisibility.-From - " Some Impressions of London Social Life," in the Atlantic Monthly.

CHINESE LADIES.

How do they marry in China, and what is interesting questions are answered in this the parties, not by the parties themselves. sometimes betrothed at a very early age. bands; but they may and do have special den of your child, and, by bearing it bravely, dancing and singing, being some of the arts of public women, it is not reputable for ladies to do these things. They use white and red paint on their faces freely, which does not improve them in the eyes of Europeans. These women are said to be amiable, cheerful, and industrious; such virtues their education requires, and such their habits of life seem to produce. These virtues, it is expected, we shall receive in large measure, in return for sewing machines, indiarubber shoes, and lucifer matches. - From " Peking and the Chinese, in Dublin University Magazine. GEORGE ELIOT AS A NOVELIST. For artistic finish and breadth, taken together, George Eliot has no equal among novelists. Miss Austen rivalled, perhaps excelled, her in the former, and Sir Walter Scott surpassed her in the latter quality; but neither of them even approached her in the combination of the two.. Certainly George Eliot cannot compare for a moment with Sir Walter Scott in historical portraiture. Savonarola is a mere shadow beside the splendid portraits of Mary Queen of Scots, or James I., or Louis XI., or Charles the Bold all of which remind one o the full, rich paintings of Titian's days But with this great exception-of the art of reanimating the past-where, even in Scott. is such a store of faithful and, finished pictures of character to be found? Which of Sir Walter's ordinary heroes or heroines his Ivanhoes and Nevilles, his Rowenss lay-figures of the kind-will compare for truth with Seth Bede, Tom Tulliver, Silas Marner, Tito, or Lydgate, or Dinah, Maggy, Nancy Lameter, and Dorothea? Where are there in George Eliot's stories such fantastic and unreal figures as Fenella in " Peveril of the Peak," or Meg Merillies in "Guy Mannering?" George Eliot paints with Miss Austen's unerring humour and accuracy, and with Sir Walter's masculine breadth. Not only her provincial figures, but almost all her figures, are as good as his Edie Ochiltree and his Councillor Pleydell. She can draw -not merely eccentric characters, but perfectly simple and normal characters of to-day, with all the humour and truth that Scott reserved for his special studies. She has Miss Austen's accuracy and instinct combined with a speculative sympathy with various greeves of thought which gives depth to the minutia of real life, and which enables her to interest the intellect of her readers, as well as to engross their imagination. And these great powers'have never been brought out with anything like the full success achieved in "Middlemarch." As our author's object in this table is to show the paralysis, and the misleading diversions from its natural course, which a blunt and unsympathetic world prepares for the noblest ideality of feeling that is not in sympathy with it, it was essential for her to the such a solidity and complexity, to her picture of the world by which her hero's and heroine's idealism was to be more or less tested and partly subjugated, as would justify the impression that she understood fully the character of the struggle. We doubt if any other novelist who ever wrote could have succeeded equally well in this melancholy design, could have framed as complete a picture of English county and county-town society, with all its rigidities, jealousies, and pettiness, with its thorough good-nature, stereotyped habits of thought, and very limited accessibility to higher ideas, and have threaded all these pictures together by a story, if not of the deepest interest, still admirably fitted for its peculiar purpose of showing how unplastic is such an age as ours to the glowing emotion

of an ideal purpose .- British Quarterly Re-

MISS VIX AT THE LIBRARY: There was Miss Vix. who avoided what she called "secular reading,"-I always wondered if she thought I told the curates what books she had. Not that there was anything personal in her interest in the curates, for we had about ten of them in twenty years, and she impartially looked after them all. I wonder why Miss Vix thought God made week-days at all. 1 asked her once if she ventured to read the Book of Job, since some biblical critics think it may be what is called "a story." For my own part I always had an inclination to fiction, because I think what are generally called facts are the most fictitious things in the world. How much do most biographers really know of their subject? Who would you trust to write your biography? And yet you're nobody in particular. But if you Where bird-notes joined with brook-notes had a giant heart, and had lived a life to match, how would you like all your grand moral anatomy to be overhauled by any pigmy that wanted to carn a dishonest peuny? Now in fiction, if the writer can do nothing Is built the nest for which we look and long. else, he can scarcely help letting out a bit of himself-even if it be only that he is a fool. -From " Seen and Heard."

or deafness, or physical malformation. The mother who could come to hate a child on account of his natural misfortunes, would be a brute indeed. But few mothers reflect that the child's ill-temper, irreverance, or even graver faults are also the result of natural deformity, and that the child who is always under censure for bad qualities is in Here follows a pause of several minutes. reality an object of pity.
